Pub Date: 1/29/2018

Author picture:

Experimentalisms in Practice explores the multiple sites in which experimentalism emerges and becomes meaningful beyond Eurocentric interpretative frameworks. Challenging the notion of experimentalism as defined in conventional narratives, contributors take a broad approach to a wide variety of Latin@ and Latin American music traditions conceived or perceived as experimental.

Ana R. Alonso- Minutti is associate professor of music and faculty affiliate of the Latin American and Iberian Institute at the University of New Mexico. Eduardo Herrera is assistant professor in ethnomusicology and music history at Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey. Alejandro L. Madrid is author or editor of more than half a dozen books and edited volumes about the intersection of modernity, tradition, globalization, and ethnic identity in popular and art music, dance, and expressive culture of Mexico, the US- Mexico border, and the circum-Caribbean.

Sutton E. Griggs (1872-1933) was a significant African American social reformer, pastor, and prolific writer. His successful first novel, Imperium in Imperio (1899), addressed in a forceful way the plight of Black Americans in post-Reconstruction America. Using Griggs's life story as a platform, Sutton E. Griggs and the Struggle against White Supremacy explores how conservative pragmatism shaped the dynamics of race relations and racial politics during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. More precisely, the book examines the various intellectual tactics that Griggs developed to combat white supremacy.

Author picture:

Intimacy is the story of an unnamed narrator ruminating on suicide. He reflects on the origins and significance of his material possessions, and on the seemingly inconsequential moments in his life, while he prepares to carry out his plans. In this melancholy novel about a man on the brink of suicide, Stanley Crawford allows readers to question what it really means to be close to a person. Intimacy follows an unnamed narrator planning his own death.

Stanley Crawford was born in 1937 and is a graduate of the University of Chicago and the Sorbonne. He is coproprietor with his wife, Rose Mary Crawford, of El Bosque Garlic Farm in Dixon, New Mexico.

The Divine Comedy of Dante Alighieri, Volume 1: Inferno
Dante Alighieri
Oxford University Press .
9780195087406
672 pages hardcover
$45
Pub Date: 2/29/1996

Author picture:

This is the first volume of a new prose translation of Dante's epic - the first in twenty-five years. Robert Durling's translation brings a new power and accuracy to the rendering of Dante's extraordinary vision of Hell, with its terror, pathos, and sardonic humour, and its penetrating analyses of the psychology of sin and the ills that plague society. A newly edited version of the Italian text can be on facing pages, and this edition includes fully comprehensive notes as well as sixteen essays on special subjects.

Dante Alighieri (1265-1321) was born in Florence to a prominent family and trained as a pharmacist. He fought in the Battle of Campaldino and was active in the internecine Florentine politics of the time, which resulted in his exile. During this time, he began writing Commedia, which he finished shortly before his death in Ravenna.

Blackdom, New Mexico, was a township that lasted about thirty years. In this book, Timothy E. Nelson situates the township's story where it belongs: along the continuum of settlement in Mexico's Northern Frontier. Dr. Nelson illuminates the set of conscious efforts that helped Black pioneers develop Blackdom Township into a frontier boomtown Timothy E. Nelson was born in South Central Los Angeles, raised in Compton, California, during the early 1990s, and went to Santa Monica Community College in the wake of race-and class-based conflict with the Los Angeles Police Department. He lives in Santa Fe, New Mexico.

The author has taken the concept of organizational culture from corporate literature and applied it to two unique government programs the Peace Corps and VISTA. The book traces the ongoing conflict between partisan ideology and the organizational culture formulated during the Kennedy and Johnson years. It follows an often intense struggle between political appointees on one side and career employees, volunteers, and returned volunteers on the other.

T. Zane Reeves is Professor and Director, Division of Public Administration, The University of New Mexico.

Across the American landscape and on the lunar surface, many facilities and landing sites linked to the Apollo program remain unprotected. Some have already crumbled to ruins--silent and abandoned. The Final Mission explores these key locations, reframes the footprints and items left on the moon as cultural resources, and calls for the urgent preservation of this space heritage.

Lisa Westwood is director of cultural resources at ECORP Consulting, Inc., and a professional archaeologist. Beth Laura O'Leary is professor emerita of anthropology at New Mexico State University. Milford Wayne Donaldson is president of the firm Architect Milford Wayne Donaldson, FAIA.

Pub Date: 8/18/1995

Columbus called the lands he discovered and believed to be parts of China “the beginning of the East,” and his aberrations, delusions, and fantasies form this compelling novel’s spiritual center. The Beginning of the East is written from an intriguing point of view that is simultaneously Western and Oriental, by an American scholar who is heir to the Chinese Mandarin tradition.

Max Yeh lives in the mountains of New Mexico with his wife and daughter. Besides writing fiction and screenplays, he works on a wide range of topics from literary theory and linguistics to art history and science. He was born in China, educated in the United States, and has lived in Europe and Mexico. He taught at the University of California, Irvine, and at Hobart and William Smith Colleges. Recently, he has been adjunct professor of English at New Mexico State University and Assistant Chief of the Hillsboro Fire and Rescue Department.
