This is a story about 1,500 miles of gravel road. Quickly built by the U.S. Army over an unmapped stretch of the Canadian Rockies in the tense aftermath of Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor, the Alaska Highway was intended to provide an emergency supply line to the airfields of the Northwest Staging Route and to U.S. military bases in Alaska. Initially conceived in simple terms, the wartime highway soon spawned an amazing array of related construction projects across more than 1 million square miles of western Canada and Alaska, an area four times the size of Texas.

A construction worker inexplicably walks off a beam, plunging to his death, and a woman on hospice is murdered. Rose Brighton, a Birmingham police detective and a witch of House of Rose, has to find the killer, because the next person on his list is Rose herself.

T.K. Thorne has written two award-winning historical novels, NOAH'S WIFE and ANGELS AT THE GATE, filling in the untold backstories of extraordinary unnamed women—the wives of Noah and Lot—in two of the world's most famous sagas. The New York Post's "Books You Should Be Reading" list featured her first non-fiction book, LAST CHANCE FOR JUSTICE, which details the investigators' behind-the-scenes stories of the 1963 Birmingham church bombing case.

Restitution is the story of political ambition and individual soul-searching and growth. It focuses on the journey towards social justice and equality, and also the potential deadly consequences of myopic political and religious zealotry. Compromise is often eschewed when ideological dogma claims its place ahead of practical politics.

Donald Catalano resides in Chicago, IL. He has obtained a Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees in Political Science. He has melded his life-long fascination and love of politics with numerous years of working in the legal profession, into his first love, that of writing fiction.

After being shot on duty, former Denver Police officer, Reese Golden, starts a private investigator firm in her hometown of Meadowlark Valley, Wyoming. Easier cases like skip tracing individuals and performing background checks pay Reese's bills and keep her from becoming too emotionally involved. Skylar Ellington calls Reese one day, pleading for Reese's help in locating her 4-year old daughter Daisy. Law enforcement and any other PIs Skylar has hired haven't located the child's whereabouts

Cindy Keen Reynders was born in Portland, Oregon and has lived all over the United States and also in Japan. Cindy currently lives in Cheyenne, Wyoming with her husband Rich. She retired from Laramie County School District 1's Community Relations office, however, she continues to contribute freelance articles for the Public Schools Chronicle.

This graphic novel, illustrated in a varied range of style by nine superb Alaska artists, can be used in a classroom setting to teach Alaska history to grades 7 through to college level, or it can simply be read for enjoyment by children or adults. Forty pages of supplemental notes further explain each scene and provide questions for group discussion as well as sources of additional reading to research topics in detail.

Sarah Hurst is an author and journalist from the UK who lived in Anchorage from 2001 to 2013 - moving there to live with her future husband, whom she met on the internet while living in China. After assisting a producer making a documentary for the 50th anniversary of statehood in 2008 she wrote a play about Alaska history that she subsequently turned into a graphic novel with the help of nine artists. She is now back in the UK, where she writes mainly about Russian politics.
